

Revised English Mass Translation
Final Installment

Words in bold are the new translation while words in (italics) are the former translation.

Sign of Peace

Priest: The peace of the Lord be with you always.

People: And with your spirit. (And also with you.)

Invitation to Communion

Priest: Behold (This is) the Lamb of God, behold him who takes away the sins of the world. Blessed (Happy) are those called to the supper of the Lamb (who are called to his supper).

All: Lord I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof, (to receive you), but only say the word and my soul (I) shall be healed.

Concluding Rites

Priest: The lord be with you.

People: And with your spirit. (And also with you.)

Stewardship:

Sharing These Gifts in Love of God and Neighbor

The gospel today is a clear illustration of our responsibility to share the gifts God lovingly bestows upon us. To love our neighbor as ourselves we respond in their time of need with food and drink, shelter and clothing, companionship and care. It is easy for us to take for granted all the blessings we enjoy. Jesus reminds us of our duty to use these blessings to show love to others. As a shepherd watches out for his sheep, we should watch out for one another. When we make the welfare of our neighbor our concern the love of God can flow through us. May we strive to follow the Good Shepherd in his teaching and in his example.

CHRIST THE KING

GOD'S FIRST COMMANDMENT: GOD FIRST

They like to call State College – home of Penn State University – “Happy Valley,” though the most recent revelations are deeply, deeply disturbing. Pointed questions are in order, including:

- How depraved have we become when the firing of a college football coach creates greater outrage, disgust and anger than the disclosure of the possible sexual abuse of children?
- What ought we to say when a concern to protect the reputation of a university as a football powerhouse trumps the highest regard to champion the innocence and safety of children?
- Where are the legions of protesters, students and otherwise, expressing their solidarity with the children victims of sexual assault and their families?
- What are we to make of the outbursts in defense of those who chose not to pursue the truth with all their might when suspicions were sounded about the gross sexual assault of innocent boys occurring right in their midst?

The facts tell us that university police first began investigating accusations involving the assistant football coach in 1998. The findings are alarming. Police recorded a phone call between the coach and the boy’s mother during which the coach acknowledged his having violated criminal and ethical statutes.

Inexplicably, the (then) county district attorney closed the case and filed no charges.

Before the next season the retirement of the coach is announced yet top officials give him an office in the football building along with access to all university facilities including locker rooms. In the intervening years more and more accounts surfaced involving the former coach continuing to assault boys.

The crux of this appalling story is not about a storied football program in crisis. Nor is it about the startling end to the career of the head coach who has won more college football games than all others. On display in its most hideous perversions we see what happens when idols are worshipped. In this case, sport was cast as a god and its leaders look to have been beyond reproach. It rightly makes us sick.

Let us listen attentively to the first commandment the Lord God gave to us to obey:

“I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. You shall have no other gods before me. You shall not bow down to them or serve them” (Exodus 20:2-3).

“It is written: ‘You shall worship the Lord your God and Him only shall you serve’” (Deuteronomy 5:7).

It is our supreme duty to protect the innocence and guard the vulnerability of children. The abuse and exploitation of children are inexcusable – that is, there are no excuses, for none exist. To do so manifests a moral depravity that defies description.

Kindly allow me to make clear that my candor in addressing this situation is in no way intended to be a cheap form of piling on after the play. There is no ignoring the fact that the sexual abuse of minors by some priests and some leaders who shamefully sought to hide these heinous crimes has undermined the work of the Church in every way. The Church must continue to do all it can to address what is unquestionably our darkest moment as Catholics in America.

Friends, whenever the light of truth is eclipsed by the darkness of deceit, evil gains a foothold.

“Jesus said, ‘I am the way, the truth and the light’” (John 14:6). There is no other.

Made possible through the parish VOGEL HELPING HANDS FUND, the NEW LIFT near the Commons kitchen now is available for your use. For those desiring assistance with entering and exiting the church, the new lift is longer, more open, able to bear a greater load and much quieter than the previous model.

+++++

In his 1864 THANKSGIVING proclamation, President Lincoln prayed for the "blessings of Peace, Union and Harmony throughout the land, which it has pleased God to assign as a dwelling-place for ourselves and for our posterity throughout all generations." May your celebration of Thanksgiving be especially marked by these divine blessings.
